

Spanish Grapes

Documentary Screening and Wine Tasting

Spanish Grapes, Zev Robinson's new documentary on wine production in Spain will premiere on June 29. The result of six years of filming, traveling and editing, the documentary covers topics such as making wine, changes in production over the last couple of decades, and the challenges of marketing and exportation. It looks at Sherry and Cava, regions such as Rioja, Priorat, and Ribera del Duero, and features interviews with leading figures such as John Radford, Mauricio González-Gordon, Manuel Moreno, Giles Cooke MW, Norrel Robertson MW, Víctor de la Serna, Pedro Vivanco, and other winery owners and wine makers.
